LEHMANN NOT TEMPTED

Karl Lehmann who has been suggested as a possible candidate for congress from the state-at-large, declines with thanks. Says he, "I hope I shall always be available to serve Florida and my government in every way possible, particularly through campaigns such as the present one in the promotion of the sales of defense stamps and bonds," but he adds his assurance that he is not interested in politics. Nevertheless Lehmann would be a big man in Washington.—Sanford Hen.

Why send him to Washington when men forget us, when he does us so much good here?—Orlando Morning Sentinel. We haven't heard of any special forgetfulness from any of our Florida congressmen, but of course, we might have missed something. As for Karl Lehmann in congress, well, he knows everyone in Florida word knowing, and vice versa. His public service here has been tireless. In congress it would be the same and he could work with Joe, Lex, Bob, Pat and Pete, and Senators Charlie and Claude. Besides Karl comes from the Fifth congressional district and our district blends nicely with the four others, don't forget that.—Orlando Times.

MEASURING INTOXICATION

The time-honored plea of persons arrested for drunken driving that "I only had a couple of beers" quite often proves effective with the state judges. Recently, however, officers are seldom able to disprove it. However the Connecticut State police will no longer be compelled to work under this handicap. They now have a way of determining drunkenness. It is done by a device called an "alcoholometer," invented by two Yale University students. The device was accepted by Connecticut State police officials after careful tests which convinced them it fills the long-felt need for a method of showing how much and what kind of alcohol can be consumed without loss of sobriety.

With one of the "alcoholometers" in each of the State police department laboratories, it will no longer be necessary to take the word of persons suspected of driving while intoxicated. By having the subject breathe into a colorimeter tube coated with a colorless starch solution it is possible to determine the exact amount of alcohol in his blood. This can then be translated in terms of "alcohol influence" as established by the American Medical Association. The old "two dollar" device was destined to lose its value if this device comes into general use.—Palm Beach Post.

THE NEW PRESIDENT OF FSCW

News dispatches during the week carried announcement that Dr. Doak S. Campbell of Nashville, Tenn., has been elected new president of Florida State College for Women at Tallahassee, to succeed Dr. Edward Conradi who has served the institution capably for many years and is retiring at the age of 72. Dr. Campbell is 52 years old and has been dean of the graduate school at Peabody College.

There was some secrecy in regard to the selection of Dr. Campbell, but it was later explained that he had not had time to offer his resignation from the job he had and it would not look well for his change to be announced before his old bosses were informed of his intention to leave.

We do not trail along those who find fault with the employment of a man from out of the state for this job. When there is an important job to fill the thing to do is find the best person for the place, wherever he may be located. If we raise an embargo against people from other states they will raise one against us. But we do say that Dr. Campbell has to be good if he is up to Dr. W. J. Matthews of the State University, who was one of the "home men" being considered.—Arcadian.

ACCURATE FACSIMILE

Mark Twain often received photographs from men whose friends had made them believe that they looked like him. Discovering that his house was being torn down over with pictures of these aspirants to fame, Mark determined to relieve himself of the burden of answering the heavy correspondence, and so had his printer strike off five hundred copies of the following letter:

"My dear Sir: I thank you very much for your letter and the photograph. In my opinion you are not as handsome as any other of my numerous doubles. I may even say that you resemble me more closely than I do myself. In fact I intend to use your picture to shave by. Yours faithfully, S. Clemens."—Chicago Science Monitor.

PROFITS AND TAXES

In discussions of the need for heavier and more broadly based taxes on individual incomes the point has been frequently and rightly made that corporation incomes must also be taxed heavily. According to calculations of the national industrial conference board, income of industrial corporations after taxes in the second quarter of this year aggregated 25 per cent above the corresponding period of last year, a gain which compared with a rise of 28 per cent in industrial production.

But this tells only part of the story. The conference board has made another computation based on the reports of 424 companies, which shows that the average gain in net-income from the first to the second quarter of this year was only 1 per cent. But the federal reserve made just index of industrial production rose 9 per cent. Figures of 173 companies reporting in detail explain the reason. These companies reported reserves for taxes equal to the federal reserve index. In the second quarter, contrasted with 95 per cent in the first quarter. Corporation management is counting on a heavy tax bill, a factor which may account for the persistently doubtful view of prospects taken by the stock market.—Exchange.

THE MEN CAN HELP, TOO

Probably most men think of the silk stocking situation as an exclusively feminine concern.

It isn't. Men have a part to play in this great mass transfer from Japanese sheer silk to American cotton. Here's the first: When Agatha comes home with her first pair of cotton stockings, and, sticking out a tentative foot, indicates "How do they look?" that's where the man's part comes in. Start learning the line now.

"Ravishing, darling, they look just swell."

His bit may even a mere male contribute his bit in putting the ax to the axis.—Tallahassee Democrat.

WHAT MOTORISTS PAY

An average of $71.50 in special State taxes was paid by Florida motor vehicle owners in 1940, according to information received by Henry Anderson, Secretary, Florida Petroleum Industries Committee, from the United States Public Roads Administration. Of that amount $16.16 represents the registration fee and $55.34 State gasoline taxes.

"Besides special State taxes, motorists also may pay heavy taxes to the Federal government. At the present time the Federal government levies a tax of one cent on each half cent on every gallon of gasoline sold in Florida," said Mr. Anderson. "This levy is costing the average motor vehicle owner nearly $10 additional annually."

Despite the heavy burden of State and Federal taxation on motor fuel, suggestions have been made in Washington for the imposition of another Federal levy on gasoline. The proposal, however, is not meeting with any great encouragement, for it is widely believed that two Federal taxes on motor fuel collected over and above the State levies, are enough. The first Federal gasoline tax was inaugurated at one cent per gallon on January 1, 1932, and in 1932 on a one-year basis. However, it has been repeatedly extended. Last year Congress added a one-half cent tax to provide funds for National Medical purposes. These two Federal levies are equivalent to a sales tax of about 10 percent of the retail price of gasoline.

"GOLDEN RAINFALL"

LARRY L. SOHRING presents a good example of the "golden rainfall" which takes place when defense planning strikes a ghost town. Of course, the "golden rainfall" has been cut off dead but it has been practically smothered with debt since the 1925 real estate debacle. (Now Sobring sends out stories of the delicious benefits of the "golden rainfall" over all Highlands county caused by a construction of a six million dollar air corps basic flying school.)

At present payrolls for workmen alone are $20,000 per week and this wage money will climb to $28,000 per week before November. Then the officers, mechanics and students will come in with another payroll and some of the workmen will stay on to help take care of the crowd. The money which is bound to be spent—they made it round so it would roll—will get into every family till for miles around.

The Sobring flying camp will be four miles square with 32 barracks for enlisted men, 12 barracks for cadets, administration buildings, hangars, shops, a fire station and even a guardhouse. There will be a recreation center on the shores of Rex Beach lake. The buildings were planned by the Frank R. Ball architectural firm of Fort Myers. Plans call for activation of the school sometime in November and things will hum for a long time, the way things look at this writing.

What is happening to Sobring has already happened in a small way to Arcadia where to cadet fields have been beaten on the sites of the old Carlstrom and Darr fields. It is starting to happen to Venice where work is commencing on an $11,000,000 anti-aircraft gunnery camp. There is another big field almost ready at Clewiston. What these spots has provided for employment for a large number of men county men although the "golden rainfall" hasn't hit Fort Myers yet. But the war is not over and army engineers are building a mighty fancy airport just outside the city limits.

Sobring, Venice and Arcadia have all boomed before and then gone back to sleep. It is difficult to foresee the final result of a defense "happy days" caused by unhappy world conditions. The officials and citizens of cities and counties getting the benefit of "golden rainfall" should look ahead at least far enough to be able to go on their own, when the defense dollars cease to roll, with a realization that every benefit entails considerable present and future responsibility to carry on.—Fr. Myers News.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Kay

Gigantic new industries have been built and old ones revived and rejuvenated because some guy refused to think orthodox and permitted his imagination to run free with the ball. Christopher Columbus, Alexander Graham Bell, Thomas Edison, and a host of others refused to take things for an answer and faced the sneers and jeers of a coterie who say would for many a weary and trying year before their sanity was established and the public impressed.

Getting closer to home, it wasn't so many years ago that a court case and enterprising young chap named Porter growing out of fruit the Indian River section, went haywire and let himself in for a flock of itroos cheeks and horse-laughs when he decided to quit shipping fruit in moss lined barrels and fixed up a packing house where his product was washed, polished and packed in boxes. A smart-cracker termed it "Porter's Citrus Laundry" and everybody like little Audrey, laughed and laughed.

But Porter fruit brought premium prices and it wasn't long before the whole flamed industry went into the laundry business in a great big way.

Over in Deland right now another chap named Ted Strawn, Jr., one of four brothers running the Bob White groves and packing house near DeLeon Springs, is trying to get his grove and his business attempts to market "peeled" oranges for domestic consumption. Ted's idea was to find a market for the over-sized fruit and get for shipment and he figured it could be offered the consumer at a price to entice him to buy. An attractive package form, it would sell. Enthusiastic, he presented the brain-trust to citrus leaders. They were kind, patted him on the back, felt sorry for him and said "Saw, great idea, son. Now run your grove and prove it and we'll buy, but right now we got a lot of other things to worry about like politics and advertising and how to sell all our oranges."

So Ted put his egg back in his pocket and went home to figure out how he could make it spin on any great encouragement, for it is widely believed that two Federal taxes on motor fuel collected over and above the State levies, are enough. The first Federal gasoline tax was inaugurated at one cent per gallon on January 1, 1932, and in 1932 on a one-year basis. However, it has been repeatedly extended. Last year Congress added a one-half cent tax to provide funds for National Medical purposes. These two Federal levies are equivalent to a sales tax of about 10 percent of the retail price of gasoline.

That he peeled and wrapped a large quantity of fruit and "wrote to the ball game." It was a lovely hot day and the fans were sitting there with their tongues hanging out. "Have an orange," Ted said, passing out through the crowd. They took you graciously, ate and yelled for more.

So he went back the next day with a new supply and sold them the SOLD "em in competition with soft drinks. But they went hot and hakes and he was cleaned out in no time. It worked, but the baseball season was nearly over and he had to figure out other ways to display and sell his new product.

He put the old bean in high gear again and before long had rigged up electric refrigeration with a glass front in which he displayed the tempting juicy balls cooled, peeled and ready to eat at a popular local service station. Motorists, hot and tired from their journey, found themselves unable to resist temptation. Here, too, the new product was sold out in a hurry. The refrigerator was filled and refilled and still he couldn't meet the demand.

A lot of the customers were citrus growers themselves, some even had orange in their cars. But the public likes something new and different, something new, and especially something convenient, attractive and ready to eat.

Encouraged by the results already achieved with the new package, rubber company engineers are in Florida trying to make a machine that will automatically wrap and pack fruit in Plyofilm at the packing house, either peeled or unpeeled, and it is pointed out that fruit so wrapped is protected from all forms of deterioration and the process is not costly.

Publisher Billy Waddell of the Volusia County Mirror, who collected the data from which this column was prepared, is enthusiastic over the prospect of an entirely new and profitable market for large quantities of Florida fruit through the establishment of thousands of retail outlets for the fruit, not only in Florida but throughout the north and east which he contends would introduce Florida fruit to new customers who otherwise would never become acquainted with the quality and taste of our fruit. ## FULLER'S FULMINATIONS

By Fuller Warren

The curtain is about to be lowered on the twelve-point treaty on Florida by the journalists and I've been serving up in this column for the past three months. During these protracted procrements, I've attempted to portray the character and conduct, the personality and production, the fumes and foibles of some of Florida's outstanding characters that I would like to give a going-over, but I've been on one theme as long that it's beginning to bore even me—and I'm not easily bored by my own stuff.

So, after this final thrust, I'm going to give the publishers and the public a rest for awhile. Yet I'm going to exhibit a change of face by writing on random subjects for a space.

As the final installment of this twelve-section series, I am tossing out a terse treatise on the Grand Old Man of Florida journalism, the Willis M. Ball, of the Florida Times-Union.

Willis M. Ball is the best beloved man the journalists of our State have ever produced. He not only has no enemies, but he is actively and enthusiastically liked by almost everybody who knows him. I have heard him discussed hundreds of times, and I have yet to hear anyone say a mean thing about him. That is some record for a man who has been in a belligerent position with the like journalism for sixty years as Mr. Ball has.

That last line is the tip-off on another unique and unrivaled distinction which is Mr. Ball's. He has actively engaged in journalism in Florida for a little over sixty years, and no other man has ever approached any other in the State. I think the late Frank Harris of Ocala had a record of approximately thirty years in journalism. And that, I believe, is the closest anyone has come to Mr. Ball's lengthy and lengthening record. Not even the venerable and vigorous C. D. Lammberg at Tampa has come close to Mr. Ball's almost unimpeachable record.

Only thing that can apply he compared to Mr. Ball's unrivaled record is Joe Di Maggio's 56 game continuous hitting streak. And all of those 60 years have been with the same newspaper! And that newspaper has a larger circulation than any other in the State. The reason for its tremendous circulation is not far to seek nor hard to find.

He has another unique distinction that has never been held by any other Florida. Since the present Constitution of the State of Florida was adopted in 1885, providing for a session of the Legislature every two years, there have been 28 regular sessions of the Florida Legislature. Mr. Ball has been present throughout all of these 28 sessions. Legislators come and go; governors rise and fall; senators and representatives are elected and defeated, but Willis M. Ball goes on forever almost.

He is well past 80 years of age, but he doesn't look it. He has been a lot of unseasoned politicians in their early fifties who looked older. He is a tall, slightly stooped-shouldered man with a peculiarly symmetrical physique, black hair, and tan complexion. Though past eighty, his eyes are as bright as a candle on a moonless night.

Although he is editor of Florida's largest newspaper, and the most venerable figure in his profession, Mr. Ball is as plain, simple, and unaffected in manner as a tenant farmer. He has a hearty, ready, and infectious laugh. His hand-shake is as eager and firm as the grasp of a practicing politician.

One Ball gave fruit jars to the farmers. Others balls gave bearings to automobiles. Willis Ball the eternal editor gave Florida a great newspaper and a useful life.

Patrol To Have Teletype System

Tallahassee, Fla., Sept. 4.—The first step in establishing a state police communication system will be taken this week when a teletype circuit will begin operation over the district highway patrol office to the state headquarters here.

James J. Gilliam, director of the state department of public safety, said teletypes will be located here and at Chipley, Fort Myers, Lake City, Bartow, Deland and Fort Lauderdale. Police departments and sheriff's offices in several other cities will join the hookup later.

An application is pending in Washington for federal funds to complete the police communications system with a radio network over which reports of criminal activities and highway accidents can be broadcast through a central agency.

Information which clears over the teletype circuit will be available to police chiefs and sheriffs, and the wires may be used in cooperation with the civil and military defense organizations in event of emergency.

Gas Forms Are Coming In Slow

Bert Lapp, chairman of the fuel and transportation committee of the Pahokee and Canal Point Defense council, said yesterday that farmers are slow in making out their requisition blanks for fuel oil and gasoline. These forms should be returned to Otto Blech, secretary, at once, Mr. Lapp said.

American Housewife Is Luckiest in the World, Says Oscar of the Waldorf

NEW YORK — "The American housewife is the luckiest cook the world has ever known," states Oscar of the Waldorf, eminent host and catering generalissimo to celebrities for almost fifty years.

Oscar, who has supervised more than 200,000 private dinners and some 15,000,000 individual meals since he first went to work for the old Waldorf back in 1893, believes the modern woman definitely has an easy time of it these days.

"She probably doesn't spend one-tenth the time in the kitchen her grandmother used to," says Oscar.

The famed host of New York's biggest hotel thinks the housewife should give most of the credit to modern American industry and design. "Fast-cooking electric ranges, mixing machines, streamlined dishes, modern packaging auto-matic dining devices, and a thousand and one other present day conveniences have reduced kitchen monotony to a bare minimum," he states.

"Here at the Waldorf-Astoria we have 35 private dining rooms and sometimes as many as 10,000 meals to prepare in one day, so you can see that I have to put in a full working day to keep things moving. It wasn't long ago, however, that many housewives had to do the same thing in their own homes. But no longer. Now housewives go visiting their friends in the morning, they may play golf or go to movies in the afternoon—and still have no trouble preparing three meals a day."

Board Refuses
To Accept Roll

West Palm Beach, Fla., Sept. 4. The county commission, sitting as a board of equalization Tuesday, voted to refuse acceptance of the 1941-42 tax roll unless it is approved by J. M. Lee, comptroller.

James M. Owens, Jr., tax assessor, told the board the roll is virtually completed but so far he has been unable to make an appointment with the comptroller to obtain endorsement of it.

Ray Lee, assistant comptroller, told Owens last week that Lee intends to approve tax rolls "tentatively" with full approval to follow after boards of equalization have accepted them and the millages are spread.

Owens told the board that such procedure was not his interpretation of the law and that he would "go to court" to force approval of the roll before he releases it to the county board.

He said the roll would total $125,831,000 as compared to $23,000,000 for last year. The active roll will total $103,694,000 compared to $18,000,000 for 1940-41. The assessment is based on full cash valuation, he said.

Perry Of Sarasota
After Senate Seat

SAFETY — WILLIAM W. Perry, Sarasota county representative in the state legislature, will be a candidate for the state senate from the district comprising Sarasota, Manatee and Charlotte counties in the Democratic primaries next May, he announced here this week.

Perry said he had been advised that state senator Dewey A. Dye of Bradenton did not plan to seek re-election.

A former Sarasota newspaper man, Perry now is public relations director of the Sarasota County Chamber of Commerce.
